20s

THE ISSUE: The problems that occur in your 20s are mainly related to dryness caused by exposure to the sun. The products that I would recommend to correct these problems mainly revolve around moisturizing your skin. It is important to institute a proper cleanser daily as well as daily application of moisturizer and sunscreen use. Moisturizing really helps ward off dry skin and helps prevent collagen breakdown and sunscreen helps fight future signs of sun damage.

THE FIX: La Roche-Posay Hydraphase Cleansing Milk and Anthelios SX Daily Moisturizer with SPF 15. Both are favorites of Leighton Meester, who likes how mild the products are. "They're gentle on my skin," she says.

THE ISSUE: Skin problems in your 30s are an extension of what starts in the 20s. People develop more signs of sun damage with hyperpigmentation and sun spots that are known as solar lentigines, as well as the formation of more fine lines. It is important to exfoliate the skin, which is a very simple way of avoiding dryness. Again, sunscreen use is extremely important for skin protection against harmful UVA and UVB rays.

THE FIX: Biologique Recherche P50V Exfoliator, which is a favorite of Carla Gugino ("It's a great daily exfoliator!" she says) and Nia24 SPF 30 Mineral Sunscreen. (Renee Zellweger and Michelle Williams are fans)

40s

THE ISSUE: Age spots and pigmentation, as well as formation of deeper lines around the eyes and mouth are problems in your 40s.
