Biologique Recherche Expands in Miami

2010-09-23 | 10:28

Biologique Recherche, the French skin care line with a tradition of combining clinical skin products and professional procedures, is now available at The Standard, Miami Beach.

"The partnership between Biologique Recherche and The Standard, Miami Beach, is a natural fit," said Dr. Philippe Allouche, creator of Biologique Recherche formulations. "With a top-notch team of esthetic facialists, The Standard Spa is well equipped to perform the very specific and personalized facial treatments for which Biologique Recherche has been known for over 30 years. We are honored to service Miami's most discerning clientele who can expect the best from the union of our two truly luxurious beauty institutions."

International jet-setters and worldly local residents of Miami can now receive the highly coveted Biologique Recherche face and body treatments and products even when they are not in France, Russia, Japan or Argentina, among other far-flung locales.

Biologique Recherche face and body treatments and products are rich in botanical, marine and biotechnical extracts. The treatments offered at The Standard Spa, Miami Beach have been specifically created to cater to individual skin conditions and personal beauty needs, according to the company.
